

The lemon test

Try the lemon test

Blue Water has so much energy it can literally energise your body. One way of demonstrating this unique property is to do the "lemon test". When other liquids are placed in close proximity to Blue Water their taste and feel will be changed.

This proves that Blue Water is special and high in energy. We invite anyone to find another water which can match these properties. Squeeze the juice of one fresh lemon into two glasses. Place one glass close to the bottle of Blue Water. Keep the other at least five feet away. Wait five minutes ... Try the "closer" juice first, then the "other" juice. Most people notice an amazing change caused by the natural energy of Blue Water. Seeing is believing. Tasting is knowing.

Important Note: Make sure that the lemon you are using does not go near the "Blue Water" bottle prior to the test.

About Grander Technology

Blue Water is how all water once was, pure, living and vital. Pollution has contributed to reducing the energetic health of our water causing it to become fragmented. Simply put, it is in a poor state of health, and lacking vitality. Johann Grander understands the energetic properties of water and uses nature's energy to return it back to its optimal, healthy and vital state.

All living things have a vibrational frequency and water is the main medium through which this frequency is communicated. Grander's discoveries allow us to experience living, revitalised water, which has the capacity to communicate its energetic signature to all bodies of water, including the human body.

About Blue Water

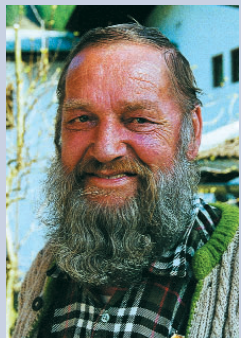

Why water?

Water is mankind's most important nutrient. 70% of all the molecules in our body are water molecules. Water balances our system and brings it to life.

Even though we use and associate with water so freely and are ourselves water-based creatures we don't know water yet. Physicists who study the properties of water admit that it has many mysterious properties. One of these special properties is the ability of water to hold the vibrational frequency of anything dissolved in it. Water is the vehicle for biological information. It is the catalyst in every biological transaction.

Why Blue Water?

Countless thousands of people around the world have discovered the special properties of Blue Water. The water itself is soft and silky to drink. This reflects the natural energy which the water contains and can impart to the body. Now for the first time in the UK you can experience this water phenomenon from Austria.

Water for life

The special qualities of Blue Water have made it famous in Austria, where it was discovered 15 years ago by Johann Grander, the award-winning Austrian Naturalist.

The 'Grander Water' revitalisation process has applications in both domestic and commercial settings.

Blue Water is the starting point for experiencing the subtle yet profound properties of revitalised water that has been given back its 'primordial' structure.

The opportunity now exists to return all the water we use to this elevated state. Using 'Granderised' water is an experience to look forward to.

For this reason, as an aid to detoxification many complementary practitioners and medical doctors in Europe recommend Blue Water in conjunction with the revitalisation of all inbound house water as a complement to their own treatments. Whilst Blue Water is not a medicine, its detoxifying effects can boost your sense of wellbeing. Scientific research has shown that Johann Grander's water has superior solvent capacity. For more information about how to revitalise the water in your house please visit www.ultimatewater.co.uk

Where does it come from?

Blue Water is taken from a deep mountain spring 2000 metres under the Austrian Alps. For years the water has been filtering through the Alpine rock, picking up natural minerals which give it a special rounded taste. Not all waters are the same.

Why is Blue Water so different?

Blue Water is produced in limited quantities using Johann Grander's water revitalisation process which enables this Austrian mountain spring water to achieve its uniquely beneficial qualities.

Blue Water is unique – there is nothing else like it. (see "lemon test").

Blue Water goes a long way

Whilst Blue Water can be drunk by the glass, it can be equally effective in small quantities. In fact, most people find it beneficial to mix 1-2 capfuls of Blue Water in a glass of regular filtered or bottled water as part of a daily health programme. Used in this way, three times per day, one bottle of Blue Water can last up to a month. For less than 50p per day you can enjoy the wonderful nurturing effect of Blue Water.

Blue Water really works

There are thousands of testimonials from people in Europe who have experienced the benefits of Blue Water and some of these are posted on our website.
